

Wait for Me!

A walk to Paradise Garden

I have always loved this silhouette portrait by William Eugene Smith 1918-1978. He was a photojournalist during WWII in the South Pacific. This photograph of his children was a counterpoint to all the horror and images he had taken of the War. The children are Juanita and Patrick Smith his children. The year 1946. I believe this is a soul picture of Katherine and myself starting on our Journey to Paradise. She has run ahead of me and is further down that path now. Katherine, Please Wait for Me...

Please Wait for Me!

By

G. A. Blackburn

The path is bright filled with light.

You are beside me here and hold my hand tight.

We both look forward to the journey ahead

With love and anticipation to guide our stead.

I could not imagine a more perfect place
But fate would give us cause to change our pace.

Our misplaced trust took you from me
And you rushed ahead further than I could see.

Now I am left on this path alone to search for you
And continue toward our Paradise Home.
I know you are safe and free from the pain and cold but I still feel lonely and have no hand to hold

I stay focused on my path ahead
And count my steps as heavy feet do tread through our memories and dreams yet to fulfil
I can see you and feel you in my heart and soul

You are just up ahead waiting for me.
Katherine I am coming, Please wait for me!
We will continue this Journey Together
Into Eternity.

God Bless Us
Kathy and Jerry

